

Bureau of Engraving and Printing (Meta)

Your last stop in Fort Worth is the office of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, one of two locations in the U.S. where Federal Reserve Notes are printed. You're surprised that such an important place is seemingly hidden in plain sight, but like everything else in this city, the first thing that strikes you about the office is its sheer size. Sure, everything's bigger in Texas, but would you believe five times bigger?

