

Inman Square

Pro Bending

Note: The original version of this puzzle had an ambiguity. The puzzle has been edited to remove that ambiguity.

In The Legend of Korra, pro bending is a sport played by benders, people who can manipulate the elements water, earth, and fire. This puzzle will require you to bend elements of a different sort.

Enter each of the elements below into the grid on the next page. Each element will “bend” exactly once, in one of the intersections in the grid. Elements that are initially entered reading to the right will finish reading down after bending, and elements that are initially entered reading down will finish reading to the right. Not every intersection will contain a “bending” square, but each bending square will be shared by two elements, both bending in that square.
