

Out for Delivery

GRAD

Cliff always thought beer made you smarter, but today he's having trouble associating tenant names and units. He had five packages to deliver and he went to the wrong door with each one! Fortunately, after a short conversation with the tenant he quickly realized his mistake and immediately brought the package to the correct recipient. Can you help him track the correct and incorrect delivery attempts?

Out for Delivery

GRAD

1. Grateful for the elevator, by the end of his route Cliff had visited at least one apartment on every floor, delivering packages in numerical order.
2. Cliff visited the most tenants on the first floor and the fewest on the fifth floor.
3. Kovac was angry they got an incorrect delivery.
4. While talking with Stone (who was excited to get the package they'd been waiting for), Cliff mentioned he'd just come from Drake's apartment.
5. Tucci wasn't home when Cliff stopped by so he just left the correct package by the door and went to deliver the next.
6. Cliff tried to insert Package #1 into a door with a mail slot but it didn't fit. He redelivered it to an apartment without a mail slot somewhere on the floor above.
7. Cliff correctly redelivered packages to a completely different set of apartments than he originally made incorrect deliveries to, and he never tried to deliver more than one package to any one unit.
8. Three of the apartments Cliff visited were right next to the elevator.
9. Cliff never visited an apartment with a welcome mat.
10. Package #4 was originally delivered to the 4th floor but redelivered to the 1st.
11. Cliff never incorrectly delivered packages to tenants Xiang, Floyd, Russo, or Irzyk.
12. Fortunately, the correct delivery address of Package #5 was only two doors down from where Cliff originally tried to deliver it.
13. Package #2 was incorrectly delivered to a higher floor than it needed to go to. The apartment he redelivered it to had a knocker with such a loud bang the tenant came right out to receive it.
14. Cliff never delivered a package to tenant Young.
15. Price was Cliff's last stop of the day, and then he left the building.